How Will Inflation Impact My Retirement?

If you're worried about the potential impact of higher consumer prices on your retirement, here are some things to consider.

Your URS Pension

As the cost-of-living rises, so will your pension benefit. The URS Cost-of-Living-Adjustment (COLA) is calculated each January based on the previous year's Consumer Price Index (CPI) as determined by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. The 2024 COLA is 2.9%.

You'll be eligible for the COLA on the anniversary of your retirement date. It's based on your original retirement benefit amount and is non-compounding. Learn more at www.urs.org/us/cola.

Your Savings Plans

Saving for retirement in a diverse investment portfolio, like URS Target Date Funds, may help you offset higher costs in retirement. If you're concerned about inflation, consider contributing more to URS Savings Plans. Go to www.urs.org/us/savings to learn more.

Funding Status »
URS Compared to Peers

Funding status is often used to reflect the health of a pension system. This metric demonstrates a fund's proportion of assets to liabilities. URS' funded status stands at 95.4% as of December 31, 2023, among the most well-funded state pensions. According to a 2023 study by the National Association of State Retirement Administrators, the average state public pension is funded at 76.4 percent.*

*Source: NASRA Public Fund Survey for FY 2023: www.nasra.org/files/Public%20Fund%20Survey/FY23/AppendixB.pdf

“The URS funding ratio is well above average compared to other public pension plans around the United States... You’re able to say, overall, it’s a pretty healthy system. It’s doing pretty well.”

‘I don’t need to rely on anyone…

Luci Transtrum walked into her HR office in tears. At age 42, a recent divorce left her bankrupt and raising three kids alone. She didn’t even have a car. Her financial future seemed bleak.

“I just didn’t know how my life was going to be,” she recalled. “I was scared I’d end up living with my kids because I wouldn’t be able to afford anything else.”

Her HR rep explained something Luci didn’t realize: During her years as a staff assistant for Ogden School District, the seeds for something incredibly valuable were quietly growing.

Luci already had almost 15 years of service credit. And, her HR rep explained, in about another 15 years, she’ll qualify for a URS pension benefit. He estimated how much Luci could get in lifetime monthly pension payments, showed her the dollar figure, and Luci’s jaw dropped.

“And I just cried again,” she said. “But this time with relief. I walked out of there feeling better about my future. He told me, ‘Luci, you’ll be OK, you won’t have to live with your children, you can take care of yourself.’”

I take care of me.’

Fast-forward more than 20 years, and thanks to her URS pension, Luci enjoys the kind of financial freedom today that once felt hopelessly out of reach.

She retired from Ogden School District in 2022 at age 62 with 27 years of service credit, and now her days are rich with family, friends, and activities.

There are water aerobics classes in the morning, craft nights with friends, themed staycations with her grandchildren (“We’re going to Italy!” she’ll announce before taking them out for pasta and gelato), and actual trips around the world to places like Thailand, Italy, and Spain. She’s won blue ribbons at the Utah State Fair for her crochets.

“I wrote a list after my divorce,” she said. “Plays I’d never seen. Places I’d never been. Things I’d never done. Retirement gave me the time and freedom, and my pension gives me the financial ability to start checking them off.”

But it’s not just about the fun—it’s about financial peace of mind. “I don’t need to rely on anyone,” she said. “I don’t have to marry for financial help. I don’t have to live with my kids. I take care of me.”

But not just herself — also her kids and grandkids. “They know they can come to me,” Luci said. “If one of my grandkids needs help with school, or a little extra for a trip, I can say yes. That’s what my pension allows me to do… URS didn’t just give me a pension, they looked out for me — like family.”

“If one of my grandkids needs help with school, or a little extra for a trip, I can say yes.

That’s what my pension allows me to do… URS didn’t just give me a pension, they looked out for me — like family.”

Matt Peters doesn’t worry much nowadays about the stock market or whether he can cover his regular expenses.

“The pension shows up in your account every month, and you don’t do a thing,” he said. “You just live your life. It makes everything possible.”

Everything, including a bold plan to ride his bike across America in Summer 2025. Matt retired from the Utah Geospatial Resource Center in August 2024 at age 60, after 30 years of service — young enough to embrace such adventures.

For Matt, retirement isn’t about slowing down. He skis midweek, explores the Wasatch when the trails are quiet, and sets off on spontaneous road trips. “I have time now,” he says. “Time to think. Time to fix things. Time to experience things and kind of live more fully.”

When we spoke to Matt, he was planning to complete a cross-country bicycle trip that was interrupted last year because of wildfires. He’ll be riding from Oregon to Washington, D.C., with a friend and former colleague.

“There’s a simplicity to it,” he said. “You wake up, eat, ride. You meet people from every walk of life. You see small towns you never would have visited otherwise. It gives you this deep appreciation for America.”

To those behind the scenes at URS, Matt puts it simply: “You can’t imagine the ripple effect of what you do. Because of the pension, I get to live the life I want. That’s the final product of your work. It’s not just a check. It’s freedom.”

Debi Mofford sees retirement almost like a second childhood, thanks to URS. “This is my new childhood,” she jokes. “URS is paying the bills now, and I just get to live.”

After 31 years of service at Utah’s WCF Insurance, Debi retired in 2022 at age 58. Thanks to her URS pension, she did so with confidence and without financial stress. “It’s a security blanket,” she said. “I don’t have to worry about market downturns. I don’t have to constantly pull from investments. My pension covers my expenses — and that gives me real freedom.”

From Day 1 of retirement, Debi embraced that new freedom. She no longer sets an alarm or rushes to meetings. Instead, she spends time traveling, trying new hobbies, and staying socially connected. She visits her grandchildren often — including trips to watch her grandson race motocross—and regularly gets together with friends for hikes, pickleball, and monthly lunches. “I thought I might get bored,” she says. “But the days fly by. I’m doing everything I never had time to do when I was working.”

Looking back, she sees the URS pension as the key that unlocked a full, free life. “It’s a luxury a lot of retirees don’t have. And for me, it’s made all the difference.”

Investing For Your Future

Our pension fund asset allocation is designed to meet long-term obligations, protect members' benefits, and moderate risk and volatility. We construct the portfolio to be less reliant on public equity, preserve capital in adverse markets, and be positioned for quick recoveries in the event of market downturns.

Pension Fund Target Asset Allocation

As of Dec. 31, 2024
Actual allocations may vary based on market movement.

- 1 Global Equities
Stocks make us part owner and beneficiary of many successful companies around the world.
- 2 Fixed Income
Bonds yield a steady stream of income. Short-term securities allow URS ready funds to make advantageous moves.
- 3 Absolute Return
These strategies strive to achieve returns that have little correlation to the other asset classes.
- 4 Real Assets
Investments include real estate, energy, timber, and commodities.
- 5 Private Equity
Although supplying capital to fund private companies is riskier than some investments, returns are expected to outperform public equity markets over the long term.

Growing to Meet Obligations

In 2024, the pension fund experienced a solid 7.5% return, growing by $2.7 billion to an all-time high of $48 billion. But no one single year defines the trajectory or overall condition of the fund. Our responsibilities extend across generations, and the fund is built to maximize long-term returns over market cycles for the retirement security of our members.

Putting You First » By law, URS is obligated to act as a fiduciary to you. A fiduciary is a person or organization that makes financial decisions on the behalf of someone else and is legally obligated to act only in their best financial interests. URS invests in accordance with its fiduciary responsibilities, following the prudent investor rule, for the sole purpose of maximizing risk-adjusted returns for the benefit of Utah public employees.

Benefit Options » Members in the Tier 2 system, those hired on or after July 1, 2011, choose between two retirement options, including the Tier 2 Defined Contribution Plan. If a member chooses this option, instead of earning credit toward a pension benefit, their employer contributes a portion of their salary into a 401(k) on their behalf. If you're new to URS and want to learn more about your Tier 2 choice, go to www.urs.org/us/steps.

‘I love that my time is my own.’

Mike Hylland has a vision to climb the highest peaks in all 50 states. But, before he could embrace that dream, URS helped inspire a vision of what retirement could be.

“I started going to URS workshops within my first five years on the job,” he says. “And every few years after that, just to keep those thoughts in my head.”

Mike worked more than 30 years with the Utah Geological Survey, rising to deputy director before retiring in 2024 at age 63.

“I loved my job, but now I love that my time is my own,” Mike said. Mike keeps a weekly schedule — not out of necessity, but to bring rhythm and variety to each day. One morning he’s tackling a house project. Another day he’s meeting friends at a coffee shop book group, discussing science, philosophy, and religion. Then there’s his music — guitar, bass, drums — sometimes jamming with his son’s band, sometimes picking bluegrass with friends, often volunteering at church.

He and his wife hit the road regularly in the travel trailer they bought using a partial lump sum from his URS benefit. “We’re not extravagant,” Mike says. “But we travel a lot and live comfortably.”

Some of those travels are part of a long-term goal: to visit the highest geographic point in all 50 U.S. states. Mike is 37 peaks in and climbing. “Some are mountains, some are hills, and some barely rise off the ground,” he says, laughing. “But they all have a geologic story.” He’s now writing a book that tells those stories in plain language — a kind of geology travelogue, decades in the making.

“URS didn’t just help me retire,” Mike said. “They helped me see retirement as something to look forward to — and plan for — right from the start.”

Robin Hatch has a lifelong passion for gardening.

"I've loved to garden since I was a kid," she said. "I just find peace in the garden, playing in the dirt, watching things grow."

Much like tending to a garden, Robin patiently watched her URS benefit grow through a long career in Utah public service. And now she's reaping the rewards of a financially secure retirement.

Robin, who lives in Roosevelt, Utah, retired from Northeastern Counseling Center in 2023 at age 58 with more than 25 years of service credit. "I will never outlive my security, and that to me is huge," Robin said.

With her URS benefit, Robin's retirement priorities include expanding her garden, giving back to the community, and spending time with her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. "I don't have to worry," Robin said. "I can kick-off and go watch their dance competitions, go to their basketball games. I have the time to do what I want."

"I'm happy," she said. "Retirement is wonderful, and the peace of mind of my URS benefit is invaluable."

Managing Your Money
in Retirement

The Keys to Keeping Score in Your Retirement

For a winning record, focus on the 4 Ls.

Usually, Ls mean losses. But when you're keeping score of your retirement money, playing the right Ls is how you win! Focus on these 4 Ls — Longevity, Lifestyle, Liquidity, and Legacy — for the W in managing your money in retirement.

These four key areas each call for an intentional, thoughtful plan with different types of retirement resources. For example, lifetime resources such as a pension benefit or a reverse mortgage may be ideal for addressing Longevity considerations. While protection resources, such as savings accounts, insurance, and home equity credit, can address Liquidity concerns — making sure you have funds readily available for contingencies.

For practical tips on addressing these important 4 Ls, join us for a free upcoming webinar about managing your money in retirement — go to www.urs.org/us/manage.

Longevity

Lifetime income for essential expenses

You'll need to cover basic living expenses for the rest of your life, such as housing, food, utilities, etc. Ideally, you'll pay for lifetime expenses with lifetime income sources, such as a pension and Social Security. But don't just think about your lifespan, think about your healthspan, which focuses on the quality of life rather than just the quantity. Increasing your healthspan with good habits and practices means less money spent on healthcare throughout retirement.

Liquidity

Easily accessible funds for the unexpected

What happens when you encounter an emergency or unexpected personal event in retirement? Maybe you get in a car accident. Perhaps there's a death in the family. Maybe you get injured or sick and require a short stay in a rehab facility. You'll need access to "liquid" funds, the equivalent of "having money in the bank." That's why in retirement you still need "protection" resources: safe, easy-to-access money, like savings accounts or insurance.

4Ls

Lifestyle

Discretionary income to fuel your dreams

This is the fun part! Think about all the exciting and rewarding things you want to do in retirement — travel, hobbies, luxuries. Ideally, these cherries on the top of your retirement sundae will be fueled by variable resources, such as income from 401(k)s and IRAs. This may be your fun money, but you need a serious strategy for how you manage these retirement savings plans, or you could get burned by taxes and inflation.

Legacy

The inheritance or charity you leave behind

Plan how you wish to pass on your retirement savings plans to family, friends, or charities. Have you updated your beneficiaries recently? It's critical to review them at least annually. Outdated information could delay or derail your wishes. View your beneficiaries and make changes at myURS — log in at www.urs.org. This video (www.urs.org/us/beneficiary) shows how.

Managing Your Benefits Online

We Don't Care if Your Look is Out of Date

Just make sure your information isn't

Even if your sense of fashion never changes, your personal information probably will.

That's why you should review your contact information and beneficiaries at least once a year. Incorrect or outdated beneficiary information could delay your wishes or prevent us from fulfilling them.

That's not groovy!

Donate to Charity Tax-Free From Your IRA

If you're 70½ or older, you can donate up to $100,000

If you're age 70½ or over and have a Traditional or Roth IRA, you can directly transfer, tax-free, up to $100,000 per year to an eligible charity.

This option can be used whether or not you itemize your deductions. The distributed amount is excluded from your income; however, no deduction, such as a charitable contribution deduction on Schedule A, may be taken for the distributed amount.

To qualify, you must be age 70½ or older at the time of distribution and the funds must be transferred directly by the IRA trustee (URS) to the eligible charity. Not all charities are eligible.

For example, donor-advised funds and supporting organizations are not eligible recipients. Distributions from employer-sponsored retirement plans, such as the URS 401(k) and 457(b) plans, are not eligible for this option.

Amounts transferred to a charity from your IRA are counted toward your IRA's required minimum distribution (RMD) for the year. If you've made nondeductible contributions to your Traditional IRA, a special rule treats amounts distributed to charities as coming first from taxable funds, instead of proportionately from taxable and nontaxable funds, as would be the case with regular IRA distributions.
